On a cold winter night in 1983, a young man named Anthony Ray Hinton was arrested and charged with two counts of capital murder. He was convicted and sentenced to death, and for the next 30 years, he languished on death row, waiting to die.

During those long years, Hinton never gave up hope. He refused to let the darkness of his cell consume him. Instead, he turned to books, education, and his faith. He taught himself law, became a paralegal, and even earned a master's degree in religious studies.

In 2015, Hinton's luck finally changed. After years of appeals and legal battles, his conviction was overturned, and he was released from prison.

He had spent 30 years on death row for a crime he didn't commit.

Hinton's story is an inspiring testament to the power of redemption and hope. It is a story that shows that even in the darkest of times, it is possible to find light. It is a story that reminds us that second chances are possible, and that it is never too late to turn our lives around.

In his memoir, The Sun Does Shine: How I Found Life and Freedom on Death Row, Hinton tells the story of his wrongful conviction and his long journey to freedom. It is a powerful and moving account of resilience, hope, and the power of the human spirit.

Hinton's book has been selected as the Oprah Club Summer 2024 Selection. Oprah Winfrey praised the book, saying, "Anthony Ray Hinton's story is a testament to the power of hope and the resilience of the human spirit. His journey from death row to freedom is an inspiration to us all."
