In the Gospels, Mary Magdalene is depicted as a disciple of Jesus, present at his crucifixion and resurrection. She is often associated with the woman who washed Jesus' feet with her tears and anointed his head with precious ointment. However, the canonical Gospels provide limited information about her life and teachings.

She argues that Mary was a significant figure in the early Christian movement, active in spreading the teachings of Jesus alongside the Apostles.

While the canonical Gospels provide a glimpse into Mary Magdalene's life, it is in the Gnostic Gospels, a collection of non-canonical texts, that her true significance as a spiritual leader and teacher becomes evident. These texts depict Mary as an equal to the Apostles, sharing in the inner circle of Jesus' teachings and insights.

Kassala's research focuses on the Gospel of Mary Magdalene, a Gnostic text that provides a detailed account of Mary's dialogue with Jesus. In this Gospel, Mary is portrayed as a wise and compassionate teacher, questioned by Peter about the nature of the soul and the path to salvation.
